Before you move anything, you need to make a decision on what the focal point of the room is going to be. Focus your efforts around that location or item of your focal. Before arranging furniture in the room, decide on what will be the focus of the room or area. You must base your furniture arrangement around that focal point. It can be anything; a fireplace, a picture window, a home entertainment center or even a wall painting.

Chairs should be placed within about eight feet of each other to stimulate conversation. Position a table in such a way that it is easily accessible by everyone from every chair. Keep a light source near the seating area. Coffee tables should have a clearance of about 14 to 18 inches from the sofa. Side tables should be at least as tall as the arm of the chairs or sofa to make serving easy and minimize accidental spills. When arranging furniture, make sure you give enough space to move around the room.

In a multipurpose room, arrange furniture in a way that you divide the room into separate living and dining area. A strategically-placed screen or curtains hung from the ceiling are simple and inexpensive methods to accomplish this. Make sure the room stays balanced and that the sections or divisions do not fight one another. Area rugs are a great method to define areas and groupings. Small pieces can easily get lost in a large room, so be sure to group these stuffs with larger elements.
